

Get a job for back to school with CallCenterjob.Ca

MONTREAL, QC (September 27, 2005) – jobWings, the Canadian leader in specialized job boards, is launching CallCentrejob.Ca, a site dedicated to call centre and customer service job offers.

Less than six months after successfully launching the Retail.ca site for retail jobs, Montreal company jobWings is already busy with a new site. CallCentrejob.Ca will become official at the opening ceremony of the 25th annual Job and Training Fair at the Montreal Convention Centre. The site has been in the pre-launch phase since the beginning of the summer.

It is in both French and English and posts jobs to be filled throughout Canada, for all types of contact centre opportunities, from incoming calls agent, to supervisor and underlying support systems specialist. An e-mail alert service automatically notifies candidates when a job offer matching their criteria is posted. Advanced search functions allow candidates to focus their search on specific regions and functions. Job seekers can easily target their search to only receive postings for telephone interviewer jobs in Laval or customer service jobs in the Saguenay region, for example.

"CallCentrejob.Ca completes the scope of occupational fields that we cover with our various specialized job boards. It's a field where recruiting is very difficult, however. The availability of a specialized job board in this area will not change the situation, because few people spontaneously want a call centre career. CallCentrejob.Ca nevertheless intends to become the easiest way of very quickly finding this type of job," stated Manuel Francisci, President of jobWings.com.

There are two types of pricing for employers wishing to post their customer relations job offers on CallCentrejob.Ca.—per posting ($150 for 30 days) or per click ($0.15 a click). Pay-per-click pricing is available via the indexing service of the Nicejob.ca job search engine.

About jobWings:

jobWings.com is the leading online recruiting board for finance and accounting professionals in Canada and owns 9 other specialized job boards. All of them are part of Publipac.ca, the only Canadian niche job board network. jobWings is also the founder of Nicejob.ca, the most popular Canadian job search engine.
